TAX STRATEGY

Our tax strategy supports our group strategy and the way we do our business. The document published by the Mayr-Melnhof group complies with its duties under Schedule 19 of Finance Act 2016 to publish a group tax strategy for the

MANAGING OUR TAX RISKS AND GOVERNANCE

Key management roles

The Board delegate responsibility for tax matters across the group to the Chief Financial Officer and Group Head of Tax. Under their direction local tax expertise is sought by employing professionals or engaging with tax advisors. The Group Head of Tax is responsible for developing and ensuring that the group's tax policy is adhered to in all jurisdictions.

Our tax teams at group and local level comprise individuals with a mix of industry and business knowledge. We engage tax advisers to provide specialist expertise and also to undertake tax compliance work.

Tax compliance

The group appoints external tax advisers to work closely with in-house tax experts and to review and prepare the corporation tax returns. Final authorization is given from the Managing Director of the relevant company. This is classed as a lower risk item where the local team are able to make decisions regarding when to seek external assistance.

Complex tax projects

These projects involve co-ordination by the tax team of the group since they are classed as higher risk. All projects require approval and the tax advice required is then prepared by the tax advisers in coordination with the local accounting team and the group tax team.

The UK group and its tax risks

The UK group manages its tax risks by ensuring submission of all UK tax returns occurs on a timely basis, including sufficient detail to enable HMRC to form an accurate view of the affairs of the company by filing the return with adequate supporting information. The UK group also endeavours to ensure it pays the appropriate amount of tax at the right time.

Where views may differ to the position taken by HMRC, the UK group aims to be transparent about the filing position it has taken.

In addition to engaging with external tax advisers providing corporation tax compliance services the statutory accounts of each legal entity within the group are audited by external auditors each period. As part of this process, the tax calculations and procedures are reviewed.

MANAGING OUR TAX RISKS

One of the group's main objectives is to be compliant with local tax law in each jurisdiction in which the group does business. This ensures timely declarations and payments.

The worldwide group and its tax risks

The group aligns its transfer pricing policy with the OECD guidelines as well as the guidelines of the various jurisdictions in which it operates. The group applies the arm's length standard to ensure the parties to intercompany transactions are appropriately remunerated. Consistent with the group's tax policy, it regularly seeks professional opinions and advice from independent external advisers.

The standardised transfer pricing policy was established with the assistance of external advisers. The documentation is reviewed annually by both the UK entities and, at a group level, by the group tax team. The risks associated with this are evaluated annually by the external advisors and they can also be evaluated by the external and internal auditor.

Withholding tax issues are dealt with by local management and in cases of difficulty the local team will coordinate with external tax advisers or group tax.

Indirect tax

The preparation and management of indirect tax matters lie with the financial accountant or specialized tax expert in the local area with the final review undertaken by the chief accountant. Tools are used to validate the correctness of VAT data and external advisors can be appointed to check indirect tax returns.

In relation to specific cross-border transactions and more complex indirect tax areas, external tax advisers are consulted.

Employment taxes

The payroll teams of each respective entity calculate the relevant payments due, seeking advice from local advisors where there is uncertainty or the tax at stake is material.

This ensures the tax due in respect of employees and expenses reimbursed is calculated as accurately as possible.

ATTITUDE TO TAX PLANNING

The group recognises the importance of complying with tax legislation within each jurisdiction in which the group is situated and takes care in ensuring that tax due has been calculated as accurately as possible in each country in which it operates.

Each UK company within the group has external tax advisers who are called upon in relation to corporation tax compliance and can also be contacted for advice on any other arising tax matters.

The external advisers will discuss and validate our understanding of the relevant tax legislation and assist us in complying with local tax legislation and our tax strategy. The group take this policy to ensure that matters are dealt with appropriately and with the right level of expertise.

The group's investment decisions are made with the best interests of the business in mind and differing local tax regimes do not impact the decision made. That said, the group will not engage in tax efficiencies if the underlying commercial objectives do not support the position, or if the arrangements impact upon the reputation, brand or future relationships with the local tax authority.

The group plan to make beneficial claims and elections, or seek to benefit from exemptions available within relevant tax legislation but will not undertake transactions purpose is to obtain a tax benefit. In addition to this all transactions between countries are made at arm's length to ensure tax is paid in the appropriate country.

MAYR-MELNHOF GROUP

The group also publishes a non-financial report. The group recognises the importance of paying tax and contributing to society and hence has methods in place to ensure compliance with laws, and payments are made to the relevant tax authorities as appropriate.

ATTITUDE TO TAX RISK

Changes in legislation

New tax legislation or changes to existing legislation or its interpretation may represent tax risks.

Local management are kept up to date with any changes in tax legislation to ensure ongoing compliance, both by reading the relevant tax authorities publications and consulting with external tax advisors on a frequent basis.

The group will seek advice from external advisors and may liaise with tax authorities where there is significant uncertainty or complexity involved with a transaction or interpretation of legislation.

Compliance and reporting

The group manages its tax risks associated with tax compliance by appointing external advisers to assist with the filing of the returns and supplementary claims and elections as appropriate.

Governance and monitoring

The tax landscape, general business environment and business operations continuously evolve and so our approach to tax risk management and the tax strategy will be reviewed at regular intervals and amended if necessary. Any amendments to this tax strategy may be suggested by the Group Head of Tax, Risk Management or the Board. The Mayr-Melnhof staff responsible for tax, which includes the tax department as well as other staff involved with tax as part of their day-to-day duties, are subject to internal and external audit reviews.

RELATIONSHIP WITH HMRC

Dealings with HMRC

In dealings with HMRC the group will act in an open, honest and transparent manner.

There are no designated contacts for the group at HMRC. The group dedicates appropriate resources in order to proactively manage tax compliance obligations.

The group seeks to ensure submission of UK tax returns is on a timely basis including sufficient detail to enable HMRC to form an accurate view of the affairs of the company filing the return with an adequate supporting audit trail and sign off process.

The group also ensures that the appropriate amount of tax is paid on time.

How we work with HMRC on tax risks

Where appropriate, the group will seek pre-transaction clearance from HMRC to ensure HMRC are in agreement to the group's plans from a tax perspective.

Where there are complex tax areas which are difficult to interpret we seek advice from our external advisers.
